BRITAIN AND FRANCE PROTEST NAZI PROPAGANDA IN AUSTRIA

U.S. OFFICIAL DENIES TREATY WITH CHINA

"Japanese Reports Unfounded."

EMPHATIC REPLY TO REPORT OF AVIATION PACT

Washington, Yesterday.
An emphatic denial of the existence of a secret Sino-American aviation treaty, alleged by the Japanese press to have been recently concluded in Washington, was yesterday made by the Acting United States Secretary of State, Mr. Phillips.

Reports of any such treaty, he declares, are entirely unfounded.—Reuter.

A sensation was created yesterday when the leading Japanese newspaper, Asahi, published the full text of the alleged secret treaty, consisting of three Chapters with 17 Articles and four Annexes. It is reported to give America full privileges and responsibility for the organization of the Chinese Air Force, and stipulates that America shall supply China with half of the necessary funds estimated at $40,000,000 for the construction of 835 planes.

Nanking Denial Issued.

"PURE FICTION"

Nanking, Yesterday.
A Government spokesman to-day branded the Japanese reports of a secret Sino-American Aviation Treaty as "fiction pure and simple", adding "The Japanese penchant for fanciful fabrications seems to know no bounds".—Reuter.

RAILWAY SERVICE IN THE NORTH

Mr. Ku At Peking To Inspect Lines.

CONFERENCE WITH THE JAPANESE.

Peking, To-day.
Ku Meng-yu arrived here this morning.
Interviewed by the press, he denied he had come here on a political mission on behalf of Mr. Wang Ching-wei. He had only come, he said, to inspect the North China railways, including the Suiyuan line.

Questioned regarding the Churhar situation, Mr. Ku emphasized that the Government had no intention to settle the matter by force. He added he expected that through traffic between Peking and Shanhai-kuan would materialise shortly. A conference with this aim in view is meeting at Shanhai-kuan to-day.

Mr. Ku denied that Manchukuo delegates were participating in the conference. There are only Japanese and Chinese delegates, he affirmed.

Mr. Ku, who expects to remain here week, called on General Ho Ying-ching, the War Minister, this afternoon.—Reuter.

TREASURY BILLS ISSUE OVERSUBSCRIBED

London, Yesterday.
Applications for Treasury Bills yesterday totalled £70,925,000.
The amount allotted in bills at three months was £40,000,000. The average rate per cent was 6/4.95d compared with 6/11.08d last week.—British Wireless Service.

Baron Francenstein, Austrian Minister to London.

FENG IS REALLY "PENITENT"

Ready To Accept
Nanking Terms.

TO HAND OVER MILITARY AFFAIRS.

Nanking, Yesterday.
Giving instances of two of his recent telegrams, Chinese reports state that General Feng Yu-hsiang is now really "penitent" and ready to accept the Government's solution to the Churhar issue.

It is stated that General Feng wired Mr. Li Lieh-chun, the Central Executive Council member on August 1, expressing his willingness to accept the four conditions laid down by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek and Mr. Wang Ching-wei for the settlement of the Churhar trouble, and has asked Mr. Li Lieh-chun to convey his intentions to the Government.

In another telegram to Mr. Pang Ping-hsun, dated August 3, General Feng Yu-hsiang declares that he is immediately winding up his military affairs in Churhar preparatory to handing over the military and political functions to the Government authorities.—Reuter's Pacific Service.

INTRIGUE ALLEGED BY MR. LANDER

Reason For Expulsion
From Turkey.

FINGERPRINTS TAKEN BY POLICE

Sofia, Yesterday.
The suggestion that his expulsion from Turkey is due to personal intrigue hatched during his absence on leave, was yesterday made by Mr. T. E. Lander, representative in Turkey of Metropolitan Vickers. Mr. Lander was ordered to leave the country immediately, after being summoned to Istanbul on Thursday.

In an interview with Reuter, Mr. Lander denied all suggestion of espionage. He said that on his arrival at the police headquarters at Istanbul, his photograph and fingerprints were taken, and he was then accompanied to the Bulgarian frontier by uniformed policemen.

Mr. Lander only arrived at his headquarters at Ankara, from London, on Thursday, and is at loss to understand the reason for the expulsion order. No official reasons have yet been given, and as far as is known, the Armstrong-Vickers Company enjoy friendly business relations with the Turkish Government.—Reuter.

FRIENDLY NOTES

FOUR POWER PACT CITED SPECIFICALLY

Representations By Berlin Embassies.

ITALIAN DEMARCHE MADE PREVIOUSLY.

London, Yesterday.

The British and French Embassies in Berlin were last night instructed to hand to the German Government, this morning, representations from their respective Governments, regarding the spreading of Nazi propaganda in Austria by means of radio, and leaflets dropped from aeroplanes.

This move follows a separate demarche made by the Italian Ambassador to Berlin, a day or two ago.

Both notes are in friendly, indelicate terms.

The final text of the notes consists of only three paragraphs. It was agreed between the two Governments, yesterday that they be made under the preamble of the Four Power Pact, which it mentions specifically, as it is considered that the "demarche", in this respect, constitutes the most friendly method of approaching Germany.

The notes cite Article Ten of the League Covenant and Article Eighty of the Versailles Treaty, pointing out the regrettable effect of Nazi interference in Austria.

The first Article provides that the members of the League respect the territorial integrity and political independence of other members. Under the second Article, Germany agrees to respect Austrian independence.—Reuter.

GANDHI GAOLED AGAIN

Light Sentence In View Of Age.

London, Yesterday.

The Mahatma Gandhi, who was released and re-arrested owing to his refusal to comply with the Government order restricting his activities, pleaded "guilty" when on trial at Poona yesterday, and was sentenced to one year's simple imprisonment.

He admitted a deliberate breach of the Government order, which he said he had no alternative but to disobey, although he was a man of peace.

The light sentence was imposed in view of Gandhi's age and the fact that the Government did not press for severe punishment.—British Wireless Service.

GERMAN JOURNALIST GAOLED WITHOUT OPEN TRIAL

Sharp Repercussions May Follow
Austria's Action For Insult

Vienna, Yesterday.
Sharp repercussions are expected to follow the announcement that Herr Franz Riedel, chief correspondent of the Berlin newspaper, Germania, has been sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment for written an article insulting the Austrian Government.

The sentence is increased by the fact that Herr Riedel was arrested and sentenced without an open trial.—Reuter.

AMERICAN GIRL DROWNED AT LANTAO

Tragic Death Of Jean Snyder.

FUNERAL IN CANTON TO-DAY.

"Daddy, the little girl won't speak to me." In these few words, the news of the tragic death of little Jean Lucille Snyder, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Snyder, of the American Presbyterian Mission, was conveyed to the missionaries at the camp on Lantau, yesterday, by her six-year-old playmate, May Thompson.

Hurrying to the spot where his daughter guided him, Mr. Thompson found Jean Snyder dead on the edge of the bathing pool where she had been drowned.

It appears that the two children had strayed from the mission camp to the pool, which is situated about 150 yards from the house, at about 12.30 p.m. Jean Snyder seated herself on a rock and slipped over into the water, striking her head as she fell. She sustained slight concussion.

With great difficulty, her playmate pulled her out, and growing alarmed when Jean did not speak, she ran to tell her father.

Tai O police station was immediately informed by telephone from the camp, and No. 2 launch was summoned to convey the body to Hong Kong, arriving at about 6 p.m. in the evening.

The coffin was later transferred to the night boat for Canton, where the funeral takes place to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Snyder reside at Pak Hok Tung, across the river from Canton.

HELEN WILLS NOT TO PLAY SINGLES.

U.S. Wightman Cup
Team Setback.

New York, Yesterday.
Helen Wills-Moody, who sprained her back, and Alice Marble, who fainted yesterday, will not be playing in the Wightman Cup singles match against the British ladies to-day.

A decision regarding their participation in the final doubles match—they are partners—will be made later.

America have won the first three matches and require to win only one of the remaining four matches to retain the trophy they have held for the past two years.—Reuter.

(Earlier details on Page 14.)
New York, Later.
Sarah Palfrey will replace Mrs. Wills-Moody and Miss Caroline Babcock will take Miss Marble's place in the other singles match.

If Mrs. Moody and Miss Marble are unable to play in the doubles, Miss Babcock and Mrs. John Van Ryn, wife of the U. S. Davis Cup doubles player, will be the substitutes.—Reuter.

Australian wins All-England Championships singles final at Wimbledon. H. Ellsworth Vines (U.S.A.) (holder), and J. H. Crawford (Australia), before their final match, won by Crawford 4-6, 11-9, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4. (S. & G.)

WALL STREET SUSPENDED BY GAS ATTACK

Tear-Gas Bombs In N.Y. Exchange.

MEMBERS STAMPEDE OUT OF BUILDING

New York, Yesterday.
Excitement reigned on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday following the flooding of the trading floor with gas fumes.

At first it was believed due to a leak in an ammonia pipe, but fuller investigations disclosed that an unknown person placed a cylinder containing tear gas bombs in one of the intakes of the ventilating system.

"When the 'gas attack' was first noticed, members dashed into the street while the emergency squad, equipped with gas masks, hurried into action. No one was overcome by the fumes.

All floors below the fifth floor were evacuated and business was immediately suspended, though the curb market continued to trade.

Four Men Arrested in Boston.
Boston, Later.

The Police have arrested four men in connection with the gassing of the New York Stock Exchange. It is reported that the Police have discovered three imitation infernal machines, addressed to President Roosevelt, ex-President Hoover and Mr. Norman Thomas. The latter was the Socialist candidate for the Presidency in 1932.—Reuter.

STORM SWEEPS SOUTH KOREA

172 Fishing Boats
Sunk.

HEAVY TOLL OF LIVES.

Fusan, Yesterday.

A violent storm, which swept the sea off South Korea on Thursday last, took a heavy toll of lives. One hundred and seven fishermen in 20 fishing boats have been missing since that day, while 172 fishing boats were sunk, according to information received up to this morning.—Reuter's Pacific Service.

17 Missing Off Nagasaki.

Nagasaki, Yesterday.
Seventeen coral fishermen are missing off Nagasaki.—

BRITISH FREIGHTER DISABLED OFF FORMOSA COAST.

Japanese Vessel Rushed To Give Assistance.

Moji, Yesterday.
The British freighter Fresno City was obliged to seek aid off Formosa at noon to-day, owing to a broken propeller shaft. The Japanese vessel, Naku Maru, has been despatched to the scene.—Reuter.

LONG-DISTANCE FLIGHT

French Pilots Attempt To Beat Record.

ATLANTIC HOP STARTED.

New York, Yesterday.
The two French airmen, M. Codos and M. Rossi took off from here at 4.41 a.m. to-day in an attempt to fly to Paris and thence eastward as far as their fuel supply will permit.

They are attempting to break the long-distance flight record of 5,340 miles established by the British R. A. F. flyers in their flight from England to Walvis Bay, early this year.

The Frenchmen are piloting the monoplane "Joseph Le Brix", which carries 1,770 Gallons of petrol and is equipped with short-wave wireless.—Reuter.

M. Rossi, who together with M. Bousoutrot is holder of the world's record flight of 6,587 miles on a closed circuit, made an attempt on the British record three days after the completion of the R.A.F. flight.

Accompanied by M. Bousoutrot, he left Paris on February 11, but was forced down the same day at Casablanca. The pair had planned to fly non-stop to South America.

MR. ROOSEVELT AS MEDIATOR.

Truce Arranged In Coal Dispute.

New York, Yesterday.
As a direct result of President's intervention a truce has been arranged in the Pennsylvania coal dispute, whereby 70,000 men are to return to work.

Existing hours and wages will be maintained pending consideration of the whole problem by the Coal Code.

50 JAPANESE WARSHIPS IN MANOEUVRES

"War-Game" Off Bonins Islands.

CHINA COAST BLOCKADE "IN THEORY."

Shanghai, Yesterday.
According to Japanese reports, naval manoeuvres on an extremely large scale are at present being carried out in the area extending out in the Kuriles to Formosa, including the Mandate Islands. The manoeuvres, which are centred on the Bonin Islands, are being carried out by the First, Second and Third Battle Fleets, totalling more than fifty war vessels of all classes.

The war game is alleged to be on the lines of Admiral Suetsugu attacking from the North Pacific towards Japan, and Admiral Kobayashi commanding the defence force, based on the Bonins.

According to Japanese reports, the enveloping of the Philippines and the blockading of the China Coast will also be worked out theoretically.—Reuter.

JAPAN TO YIELD RIGHTS.

Extra-Territoriality
In Manchukuo.

COMMISSION'S REPORT

Changchun, Yesterday.
The joint Japanese-Manchukuo Commission, studying the abolition of extra-territoriality, decided to-day, after a series of meetings, that the extra-territorial rights enjoyed by the Japanese in the new State, should be abolished within two years.

The Commission also decided that the administrative rights regarding the S.M.R. zone should be returned to Manchukuo by Japan, all depending on the situation two years hence.—Reuter's Pacific Service.

GENERAL SMUTS FOR KENYA.

Invited To Nairobi For Discussions.

London, Yesterday.
General Smuts leader of the South African delegation to the World Economic Conference, has been invited by the European elected members of the Kenya Legislature to break his homeward journey from England to South Africa at Nairobi and spend a week in Kenya in order to discuss problems common to East and South Africa.—British Wireless Service.

CHINESE DEPORTEES FROM MEXICO

57 More Coming To Hong Kong.

Shanghai, Yesterday.
A batch of 57 Chinese nationals, deported from Mexico, arrived here to-day on board the President Coolidge en route for Hong Kong.—Reuter.

What Women Riders Are Wearing

Latest Notes From London.

WOMEN as well as men have come under the stern censure of Sir Walter Gilbey on the ground of the laxity of their riding attire in the Row.

A striped pullover, a dress, and silk stockings are among the dress accessories noted by this stickler for fashions of convention, but most of all does he object to the present hatless vogue, or, alternatively, to the soft hat—and this on the ground that both are a source of danger to the rider.

The season's riding fashions do not do anything to encourage sleekness. Both Paris and London views with approval trimness in the saddle, and there is no doubt that the classic riding-habit, which varies so little in its main essentials, is one of the most becoming outfits that a woman of reasonably good figure can wear.

Take Mlle. Lise Flandin, daughter of the erstwhile French Minister of Finance, who recently won the first prize for the most beautiful "Amazon" in France at the Polo de Bagatelle. Her prize is to be a life-size painting depicting her in a neat habit, mid-grey in shade, with simple white shirt blouse strictly tailored, a white bow tie and a grey bowler hat.

Two of the latest creations of a world-celebrated habit-maker with an exclusive clientele are photographed here, one complete with the hard bowler hat approved by Sir Walter.

The habit, in black cloth, is cut on classic lines with wrap-over riding skirt, and white stock tie—the habit of convention. The beige and brown suiting habit coat is worn with breeches, soft collar and tie—a neat and practical attire. The hat, however, is of the fanciful order. It is in brown summer-weight felt to tone with the costume, but bears no resemblance to the bowler, being rather of a modified pill-box type in line.

London, of course, still leads the world in the matter of the perfection of its hunting—and riding clothes, despite the rebels of the Row who offend the critics by their disregard for correctness.

Lengthening A Coat

An Easy Method.

THE modern fashion of edging revers, side, and hem of a tweed coat with a strip of plain material renders it easy to lengthen an old one which is rather short for this year's wear.

The strip to be placed round the collar and revers must be cut on the cross, but the others are better if straight, and it will be necessary to mitre each corner, including the one at the hem and side.

To give as much length as possible turn down the hem, press it, join the strip exactly on the line which shows the original length, and see it up with lining to match.

Gay Tartan

THERE'S no gainsaying the popularity of gay tartans. Whether these be the genuine clan tartans or their colouring and design have been evolved in the fertile brain of the fabric designer—all are equally effective and are being worn by children as well as grown-ups.

Early Autumn - Millinery

Violent Change In Toques.

SEMI-SPORTING STYLES

FOR early autumn there is a new felt "sailor" style, with a higher and squarer crown, a compromise, in fact, between the latest Hamburg, the old-fashioned country gentleman's hat, and the Robespierre 18th century shape.

The milliners are ingenious in suggesting a semi-sporting air to quite elegant simple styles. This new sailor in a fur felt of lighter summery weight has the square crown dented into softness, and the brim also is unstiffened. Round the crown is a petersham ribbon, finishing with a quaint tab, or original bow.

This, with the latest "cap" model, will strike the smart tailored note for early autumn.

Some of the summery hats in cotton and pique gave an inkling that the higher and squarer crown would have a place in the autumn. Also in the usual course of fashion's cycle we might expect a change from the plate-like shallowness which was rendered wearable by the addition of deep bandeaux.

Four-cornered toques in faille or velvet are somewhat fashioned on the lines of the college cap, a violent change from the conelike crowns. The four square corners, however, bend softly to any shape, and sometimes have a not veil or floral trimming at the back.

Shoes Spell Comfort

Sandals Still Popular For Comfort.

NO one should complain of uncomfortable shoes now.

There are types made, for feet that are broad or narrow, long or short, and with insteps that are high or low.

Shoe buying is not a business that can be hurried. One should be absolutely sure that new shoes should fit well, have sufficient room for the toes without being cramped, and not too much room.

Also, that they are not too high or too low at the heel.

Don't make the mistake of just standing up in one shoe without its being buttoned or laced, and saying, "Oh, yes, that will do." It will probably hurt when you try it on properly at home.

Both shoes should be put on—fastened if there are fastenings—and then walked in so that a fair test is given to make sure they really are comfortable.

Household Hints

INK spots on wood may sometimes be entirely removed, and always faded, by letting a saturated solution of Oxalic acid stand on them. Rinse thoroughly and let the surface dry.

Animal crackers marching around the top of the children's cake afford great delight at any party. They may also be set up on a graham cracker as a pedestal with a small amount of frosting as mortar.

Success in cooking eggs depends on using low, even heat.

New Styles In Sweaters

Higher Necks And Loose Lines.

PARIS. SWEATERS have taken on new angles. Necks are higher, lines are looser and waists are often belted. New fabrics are seen, since linen and cotton have joined the sweater mode and new loose stitches have made their debut. Plain colours are the rule, although stripes often appear as trimmings.

The high necklines on this year's models show a variety of designs. Some of them follow the line of men's "turtle neck" sweaters, rolling closely about the throat; others tie about the neck with a narrow little scarf, while a third group is finished with two little knitted revers right over the collarbones.

Smooth Surfaces Back Again

SMOOTHER surfaces are creeping back into favour, and there is a slight reaction toward tighter weaves. It will take some time, of course, for shaggy woollens to disappear from the stylescape—doubtless they never will do so entirely, but the smoother trend is worth watching.

Doeskin shoes are the vogue. Court shapes in blue, brown or black have motifs of dull matt kid on the vamp.

Patou Lowering Hat Crowns

PATOU is lowering hat crowns; his conductor caps with small visors and handkerchief turbans are successful.

There are many characteristic notes chez Patou, among them knitted raffia sports jackets; coloured fur sashes to match short kid mitts, and loose sleeveless jackets for all hours.

He favours gingham checked or indefinite batik printed marocains.

SUNLIGHT ABSORBED FOOD.

Many countries are so much alive to the national importance of the purity of the milk and milk products consumed by their people, that, at the present time important commissions are being held to determine the comparative virtue of the various infant foods in use.

The feeding of babies has become a highly scientific part of modern medicine, and the best advice obtainable should be secured by mothers. During the last few years a number of proprietary compounds prepared for use in infant feeding have appeared on the market although these are not intended to supplant natural breast milk feeding yet they may supplement it to the advantage of both mother and child.

SAFE FOR USE

The question which logically confronts the mother in search of an acceptable baby food, is one of primary importance namely, are those prepared infant foods safe for use from a sanitary standpoint? The prepared Baby Food Industry is a part of the dairy industry, and, as such, should bear the same relation and responsibility to the mother as the producer of ordinary whole fluid milk intended for Baby Food. If, after consultation with physician, it is decided to augment breast feeding with a prepared infant food, or to use such compounds exclusively, the mother has a right to expect, and should feel that the food being purchased is clear. In addition these foods should contain no harmful bacteria. Such micro-organisms should be carefully excluded.

BALANCED RATION

New Zealand, where was founded the Child Welfare work of the world, has now been "given the palm" for the most scientifically prepared Baby Food which is known as Ankoria. This food was described by one member as "a perfectly balanced ration" the analysis being identical with the breast milk of a healthy mother.

Mothers need have no fear of any harmful bacteria in Ankoria as carefully controlled methods of manufacture preclude the possibility of such bacteria being present, and discussions with one of the chemists in the laboratories in New Zealand where Ankoria is prepared have brought to light. Some of the reasons why Ankoria has been officially accepted by several countries for exclusive use in their clinics. It is produced by the spray process of drying, whereas most other Baby Foods have milk dried by the roller process as their base. The great distinction between Ankoria, and these substitutes is that the fat globules in Ankoria are broken up very finely and each is enclosed in an envelope of other milk solids. This is one of the fundamental principles of the process, and it enables Ankoria to be kept longer than other foods without signs of rancidity. This, of course, together with the fineness of the fat globules helps very considerably in the easy digestibility of the Ankoria.

Another important feature I saw in the manufacture of Ankoria in New Zealand was that the drying process is brought about by the rapid evaporation of the milk spray in the drying chambers. It is done at a temperature that it does not destroy the living germs called Enzymes. This is one of the reasons of the great success of Ankoria as a Baby Food.

Another most interesting point is that the Sunlight-vitamin D is contained in Ankoria to a large degree by the incorporation of a violet rayed cod oil. Sunlight is a blend of different kinds of light; that is, it is a mixture of different coloured lights having different wave lengths. This is illustrated by the rainbow which is formed by rays passing through droplets of rain so that the different colours of light are spread or sorted out. In the rainbow we see the red at one end, then the orange followed by yellow, green, blue, and violet; but when we look at the rainbow we do not see all the rainbow. Beyond the red there is light we cannot see; it is known as infra red, and beyond the violet there is no light which our eyes are not sensitive to; it is known as ultra violet.

Now of all the different kinds of light present in the rainbow, and for that matter in sunlight, only the ultra violet, and particularly a certain portion of the ultra violet is effective in the cure of rickets. This sunlight vitamin is contained to a high degree in the natural juicy green grass of New Zealand, and particularly during the spring season when Ankoria is especially produced. The pedigree Jersey Cows feed all the year round on this natural pasture, and it is this pure rich milk which makes both the Snowflake brand, as well as the Ankoria Baby Food. So mothers can rely with confidence that Ankoria Baby Food, is the most scientifically prepared, and the most reliable infant food on the market meeting the highest standard of the requirements of the medical profession. ## THE TIGER OF TIBET

Chapter 1.

WHAT HAPPENED AT PORT SAID.

(By GERALD BURRARD)

LIEUTENANT COLONEL GEOFFREY BARRACLOUGH stepped ashore at Port Said with feelings of relief. It was good to be on dry land once more. He glanced back at the sea. "Gangster" riding in the harbour and saw that coaling was in full progress. He had been cooped up on board her for nine days, and although the voyage had passed pleasantly enough, he had never cared for boardship life. He had accordingly made an early breakfast and welcomed the chance to stretch his legs.

Somewhat self-consciously he fingered the heavy '45 Colt automatic which he carried in one of the side-pockets of his coat. Such a weapon seemed somewhat ridiculous and altogether superfluous. Later on perhaps he might need it. But he was not his own master and had been given the most implicit orders on this very point before leaving London; orders which he had promised faithfully to obey.

He passed through the usual crowd of importunate guides and began to make his way towards Simon Artz's shop.

"Oh! Oh! Captain Macpherson!" Geoffrey smiled at the well-known old cry, which he had not heard for five years, as much as at the check of the Arab who, like all his class, labelled everyone both "Captain" and "Macpherson" irrespective of real rank or nationality.

Suddenly he felt a tug at his trousers and turned to see a youth bolt after having made a fruitless attempt at picking his pocket. This was a bit too much for Geoffrey and he gave chase. The lad was a good runner and led him some way, turning and Geoffrey got on his feet. Suddenly the Arab made a dart for his dead friend's knife, which was lying on the ground, but Geoffrey was too quick for him and put his foot on the weapon, at the same time covering him with his pistol. The Arab seemed to realise that the game was up, and made a dash for his life down the narrow street.

Geoffrey stooped over his other late foe. He was dead. There was no doubt about that. The little lane was now deserted, and Geoffrey wondered whether to call the police or go and report the matter to them, when he remembered the would-be murderer's knife. He picked it up and saw, to his astonishment, that it was of Chinese workmanship.

He was still gazing at it when he heard a woman's cry for help.

"Help! Help! They're..." The voice and words were unmistakably English and sounded near at hand, but from behind the house outside which Geoffrey had been attacked. He knew that no road ran in rear of the building and parallel to the one he was in, for he distinctly remembered the thief taking the first available turning. Nor could he see any side-turning which might take him to the spot where an Englishwoman was obviously in difficulties. There was no time to be lost, so he jumped at the door from which his late assailant had sprung. It was bolted on the inside. He ran at it with his full weight; it smashed in easily, and he fell sprawling over the debris. The Chinese knife was still in his hand, and he clung to it unconsciously. Picking himself up, he drew his pistol with his other hand and dashed through a dark passage into a small courtyard beyond.

It was empty. He paused to listen, and distinctly heard low voices discussing something in a language he could not understand, but which he believed to be Arabic. They came from just the other side of the surrounding wall, which was about seven feet in height. Looking round, he saw some old packing-cases lying in a corner. It was a work of a moment to return his pistol to his pocket and slip the blade of the knife through the leather belt he always wore, and then to move the most substantial-looking case to a position against the wall from the other side of which he had heard the voices.

Philip Hayde Thompson.

Once more he drew his pistol, and climbing on to the wooden case, peered over the intervening wall.

As he expected, he saw another courtyard similar to the one in which he was, but this one was not empty.

On the ground, bound and gagged, lay a white girl. Her cotton dress was torn and crumpled, her hat was gone, and her dark hair lay in festoons about her head and neck, partly covering her face. Beside her stood two Turks arguing in excited whispers.

Geoffrey hesitated a moment, but only for a moment. An English girl was obviously in danger. It was no time for half-measures. As he raised his pistol the men turned and saw him, but before they had time to call out he shot the one on the right through the head.

The other was for the moment too astonished at this sudden and violent diversion to do anything and Geoffrey flung himself over the wall. As he landed there was a report just above him. The Turk had fired, but had failed to allow for the white man's involuntary fall to the ground and the bullet went over Geoffrey's head.

Again Geoffrey fired. The range was close, but this time he only winged the gigantic Turk, who dropped his revolver with a curse, his right arm swinging at the elbow-joint.

Geoffrey could not bring himself to kill a wounded foe, and covered the man with his pistol, at the same time ordering him in English to put his sound arm above his head. The Turk obeyed with a scowl, and glared at Geoffrey from a distance of less than a yard. Geoffrey looked round for a rope with which to bind his prisoner, but under-estimated the guile of the Oriental. No sooner had he taken his eyes off those of the Turk than the latter seized Geoffrey's pistol-wrist with his sound hand, holding it in a grip of steel.

For a couple of seconds both men struggled for mastery, but Geoffrey soon realised that the Turk, wounded though he was, seemed likely to prove the stronger. His pistol was useless for the moment, and then he remembered the Chinese knife still sticking under his belt. Drawing it with his left hand, he struck with all his strength at the Turk's heart. He felt the grip on his wrist loosen; his left hand was bathed in warm blood. The Turk awayed from side to side and sagged to the ground.

Geoffrey was now able to devote his attention to the girl, and almost shouted aloud in his utter astonishment. He did not know her name, but how well he remembered her face and the occasion of their only previous meeting! But there was no time for thought. She was securely gagged, and his first action was to set her free. Her wrists had been tied, but not her legs, so there ought to be no fear of her being unable to walk on account of returning circulation. This flashed through Geoffrey's mind before the girl spoke. When she did it was only to say, "Again I have to thank you." Just that and no more, but she looked at the two bodies lying heaped in the courtyard, and sniggered.

"Can you walk?" She nodded. "Then let's come along quick."

Geoffrey led the way into the house to which the yard belonged. It was similar to the one next door through which he had forced a passage. He held his pistol well to the front and still clutched the Chinese knife. The girl placed a hand on his shoulder and followed close behind. The door leading into the street was closed, but not fastened, and in another instant they found themselves outside on the scene of Geoffrey's first encounter. (Continued on Page 8.)

CRAIGENGOWER BEAT K.B.G.C. IN THE PREMIER BOWLS LEAGUE

ROZA-PEREIRA'S FINE EFFORT IN 220 YARDS.

Clips 2 5 Secs. Off Own Record.

LAWRENCE EQUALS BATH RECORD AT V.R.C. GALA.

Lionel Roza-Pereira, the Colony's swimming champion, clipped two-fifths of a second off his last year's Colony championship time for the 220 yards when competing in a handicap event at the V.R.C. gala last night.

The Colony record is held by J. R. Johnstone, who clocked 2 mins. 34 2/5 secs. in 1929. He clocked 2 minutes 37 seconds dead for the distance, but was beaten by G. J. Smith, who showed good stamina to win by a yard from the champion. The winner had a 25 seconds advantage.

In the invitation relay race, the V.R.C. enjoyed an easy win. W. Lawrence, the V.R.C.'s last string, equalled the bath record for the 50 yards with a time of 25 2/5 seconds. The Club de Regatta took second place after a thrilling struggle against the Chinese Athletic Association.

The final item on the programme, the water-polo match between the club Veterans and the Youngsters, resulted in an odd goal win for the Veterans who, after being a goal behind at half time, scored twice through C. E. Roza-Pereira to win the match.

Roza-Pereira Congratulated.
At the conclusion of the prizes were distributed by Mr. W. Logan, Chairman of the V.R.C., who congratulated L. Roza-Pereira on his fine swim, and also the junior swimmers for the improvement they had shown under the care of Mr. W. Butt, the Club coach.

"Fred and his Pals," provided well appreciated dance-music at the conclusion of the swimming events. The Chinese Athletic Association took the lead in the first 50 yards of the relay, but they lost it as the result of a fine effort by L. Roza-Pereira. E. B. da Roza increased the lead and W. Lawrence won by half a length from the Recife, who

RAKUSEN FAVOURED TO BEAT KING

K.C.C. Handicap Billiards Final On Friday.

WIGG AND KEW BEATEN

M. N. Rakusen (—175) will meet L. A. King (—120) in the Final Round of the Kowloon Cricket Club's Handicap "A" Billiards tournament at the K.C.C. on Friday night, commencing at 8.30 p.m.

Rakusen beat C. Wigg (—125) by 500 to 407 as the result of a brilliant opening, during which he recorded breaks of 46, 31, 32 and 25 to wipe off his handicap and secure an advantage which he never looked like losing. His very fine display has made him a warm favourite for the title. Wigg's best break was a 35.

King eliminated the favourite when he beat H. Kow (ser.) by 500 to 478. The Lincolns player had breaks of 29, 27 and two 25's, while Kow had three 27's. In the "B" Handicap H. O. Huber (+50), E. C. Fincher (—25) and M. Well (+25) have reached the semi-final stages.

WRIGHT AND GRAY WIN K.C.C. MEN'S DOUBLES

Hambly and Collins Narrowly Beaten.

BURNETT AND MISS DALZIEL WIN MIXED DOUBLES.

After losing the first set and being 5-4, 6-5, and 7-6 down in the final set C. A. Wright and S. A. Gray (+153) beat R. B. Hambly and A. E. Collins (—3.6) 3-6, 6-1, 9-7 to win the Kowloon Cricket Club's 1933 Men's Doubles Handicap Final at the K.C.C. yesterday. At no stage of the game did the losers hold match point.

Hambly thus failed to record a win in his third final, while Gray recorded his second success in the tournament.

On Friday the Mixed Doubles Handicap Final was played off when G. C. Burnett and Miss O. Dalziel (—15) beat C. L. Stapleton and Miss M. Griffiths 8-6, 3-6, 6-4 after being 4-2 down in the final set.

Miss Griffiths, the K.C.C. lady champion, had previously won two titles in the tournament and was attempting to record the "hat trick."

Miss Dalziel has now played in the Final Round of this event for three years in succession, and has won on two occasions. In 1931, partnered by G. A. White, she won against Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hambly, and last year she reached the Final with Teddy Fincher, only to be beaten by Eric Fincher and Mrs. McTavish.

The Club Championship is the only one of the eight events yet undecided. Teddy Fincher, the holder, will meet A. E. P. Guest, whom he beat in last year's Final, in the Semi-Final this week, and the winner will meet W. C. Hung in the Final.

CRACK SHANGHAI JOCKEY DUE THIS MONTH.

Norman Deitz And Paul Botelho To Ride At Valley.

ELLIS AND REES IN FINAL

Billiards Defeats For Williams and Walters.

BORDERERS' CHAMPIONSHIP

The Semi-Finals of the South Wales Borderers' Battalion Individual Billiards Championship were decided at the Soldiers' Club on Thursday evening when Pte. Rees surprisingly defeated Pte. Williams by 41 points and L. Cpl. Ellis, who chalked up 77, the highest break in the Garrison League, succeeded in eliminating Pte. Walters, in spite of a very good break of 43 by the latter.

Ellis will meet Rees in the Final the date of which has not yet been definitely arranged.

Detailed Scores.	Ellis	Walters

K.C.C. FOUR FAVOURED IN SPEY ROYAL CUP

To Meet Craigenower To-day

As the result of their fine win over the Bowling Green in the Second Round of the Spey Royal Cup, the K.C.C. four are favoured to beat Craigenower in the Semi-Final Round on the Police green this afternoon, commencing at 3.30 p.m.

The following are the teams: Craigenower—G. L. Buchanan, B. W. Bradbury, H. Beer and U. M. Omar (skip). Kowloon C.C.—E. C. Fincher, M. Jask, A. Hyde Lay and J. Fraser (skip).

Craigenower have won the trophy twice and the K.C.C. have yet to win.

R. BASA'S TRIUMPH OVER H. NISH

POLICE BEATEN BY CIVIL SERVANTS ON OWN GREEN

YACHT CLUB SURPRISED

CRAIGENGOWER, premier bowls champions, checked the triumphant progress of the Bowling Green when they won on two of the three rinks to win by 20 shots at the Valley yesterday. The Bowling Green second string won to retain the leadership of the two leagues.

Only two surprises were recorded yesterday. They were the triumphs gained by the Civil Service and the Police juniors against the Police and the Yacht Club. The guardians of the law won on all three rinks against the yachtsmen.

R. Basa's four (G. L. Buchanan, W. V. Field, and H. Beer) caused a mild surprise when they beat H. Nish's rink by 22 shots. The Bowling Green four scored on only six ends, while Basa's rink recorded a six on the ninth end to give them a lead of 17-5.

W. V. Field, the leading junior skip, replaced J. S. Landolt at No. 2 in this rink.

Down 21-10 on the 16th end F. Cullen's rink recorded a six against J. Fraser, but the K.C.C. four won 24-21. S. Eccleshall was the only other skip to register a six. Down 7-3 at the fifth end the six paved the way for his 12 shots win over A. H. Busto.

K.C.C. BILLIARDS TEAM TO MEET LINCOLNS.

Friendly Game On Tuesday Week.

The Kowloon Cricket Club are playing the Lincolns in a friendly billiards encounter of eight men a-side and 200 up at the K.C.C. on Tuesday week. Represented by M. N. Rakusen, R. P. Phillips, A. Hyde Lay, G. Wigg, H. Kow, L. Jack, A. Jones and W. Goldenberg the K.C.C. should prove a good match for L. King's rink which will probably include L. Sgt. James, L. Cpl. Herriott, Sgt. Green, L. Cpl. Maltby and Pte. Abbott members of the runner-up team in the Garrison League.

HONG KONG CHINESE WIN AT BASEBALL

Honolulu Team Lose First Of 3 Games.

LEFTY CHANG'S FINE PITCHING.

Before a large crowd at Caroline Hill yesterday the Hong Kong Chinese nine recorded a sensational win when they beat the formidable Honolulu Chinese outfit by 8 to 6 to win the first game of the series of three matches to be played between these teams this week end.

This afternoon the second game is scheduled to commence at 4 p.m. on the same ground, and should the Honolulu stars win, a third game will be played to-morrow afternoon.

The Honolulu team was comprised of players who learned the game on the Island, among whom were Matty Chang, the star catcher of this year's local champion squad, Joe Kau and Joe Yee of Lingnam, two recent arrivals from Peiping who won the Northern championship, and also several players from South China. The Hong Kong team was composed mostly of South China players, Ken Lee and Al Fong from Lingnam, and also other players from Japan.

The game provided a thrilling duel from start to finish, though the Hong Kong team clearly showed that they were the superior combination.

Lefty Chang had the Honolulu team eating out of his hand until the eighth inning when they scored three runs on no hits to tie the score.

Hong Kong held the lead throughout and had the game on ice when they scored two runs in the ninth off Matty Chang.

There were many spectacular catches taken in the field, the fielding of the Hong Kong team pulling Lefty Chang out of many holes. The biggest hits of the day were credited to Tommy Kim and Taft Fong, both of whom hit three-baggers.

The following were the box scores:

TWO CHINESE RELAY TEAMS WIN AT Y.M.C.A.

"Y" Ladies Lose Early Advantage.

ERIC RAILTON WINS 100 YARDS FROM LANGE.

The Combined Chinese Men's and Ladies' relay teams made a clean sweep of the two invitation team races against the European Sides at the Y.M.C.A. swimming gala, which was witnessed by a fairly large gathering last night.

The surprise of the evening was provided by "Eric" Railton who swam a magnificent race in the 100 Yards Handicap to beat both H. Lange who conceded him two seconds, and W. Campbell, to whom he conceded one second.

The result was in doubt until the very end when Railton, with a fine spurt, forged ahead to win by two yards from Lange.

Another very close finish was provided in the under-water event which was won by C. Chadderton from N. Christensen by a foot. In the Men's team race the Chinese took the lead in the first length through Chan Fook-sing. Tsang Ho-fook increased the lead slightly against R. Wood, but Lange, swimming third for the "Y", caught up considerably on Cheong Wing-kwong. Starting the final length with a slight lead Leung Shui-man, the Chinese Bating Club's best sprinter, streaked away to win comfortably from Bertie Rasmussen.

In the Ladies Team race the "Y" Ladies took the lead through Miss Scott-Harston. Mrs. McMahon increased the lead slightly against Miss Leung Wing-han of South China, but Miss Chan Yuk-fai swam a wonderful race to overtake Doris Hunt and give Miss Yeung Sau-ling a substantial lead, which the latter retained against Mrs. A. C. Schreuder.

The Exhibition Diving was one of the most entertaining events seen in the Y.M.C.A. bath this season. Miss Helena Mite ("Bob" Salk) kept the spectators in roars of mirth with "her" lively and highly amusing antics on the high and low spring-boards, while A. Morrison, gave a first-class exhibition of fancy and plain diving.

"Free For-All" Polo.

The water-polo proved to be a "free-for-all," and resulted in a win for the New Gang by 4 goals to 1. W. Schreuder (2), W. Campbell and D. Sutherland scored for the winners while W. F. Kerr netted the losers' only goal.

New Gang—S. Fowler; R. B. Wood and C. Chadderton. H. Lange; W. Campbell, W. Schreuder and D. Sutherland.

Old Gang—H. Angus, J. E. Henry and M. Railton; A. G. Donni, W. F. Kerr, R. Rasmussen and E. W. Railton.

The following were the full results:

200 Yards Team Race:
1. Combined Chinese—Chan Fook-sing (C.S.S.C.), Tsang Ho-fook (C.B.C.), Cheong Wing-kwong (S.C.A.A.) and Leung Shui-man (C.B.C.) (Captain).
2. Y.M.C.A.—E. W. Railton, R. B. Wood, H. Lange and B. Rasmussen.

200 Yards Ladies' Team Race.
1. Chinese Ladies—Miss Chan Yuk-fai (S.C.S.C.), Miss Leung Wing-han (S.C.A.A.), Miss Yeung Sau-ling (S.C.A.A.), and Miss Scott-Harston (S.C.A.A.).

Mr. Gandhi Walks To Political Oblivion.

It has long been apparent that Mr. Gandhi is steadily losing power in India, and the sphere of his influence has been considerably lessened during the past year. His latest actions, which have been characterised mainly by a display of almost childlike defiance of authority in any form, have weakened his position still further, and the opinion expressed in Congress circles "that he was deliberately walking to prison and to political oblivion" would seem to be well founded. The Mahatma has practically no support for his new plan for individual disobedience — which had previously been rejected by Congress — and he invited the sentence of one year's imprisonment inflicted for his refusal to obey the restriction order that was made a condition to his release from a Poona gaol. Since his recovery from his 21-day fast Gandhi has haunted Congress and has disregarded the opinion of his followers. In sealing his own doom, the Mahatma is ignoring the futility of his resistance. It is strange to find Congress adopting a more reasonable attitude than Gandhi, and the latter's intolerance is all the more reprehensible in view of the British Government's endeavours to improve the status of India. The lot of the Government in an unenviable one, and it becomes increasingly difficult to steer a safe, sane course through the fire of criticism from the extremists, such as Gandhi, on the one hand, and the Conservative die-hards at home, on the other. The White paper proposals are vigorously opposed by the Winston Churchill-Lord Lloyd group, who have organised a strong campaign against Mr. Baldwin. Before Gandhi added further complications to the situation, the Secretary of State for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, was greatly concerned with the financial side of the Indian constitutional problem which, opponents of the White Paper contend, constitutes a permanent bar to the enactment of constitutional reform. The position is that the Provinces, not being separate economic units, must remain dependent upon Central Government finance; and that the creation of autonomous Provinces will be possible only when there has been a considerable betterment of central revenues — in other words, when normal economic conditions are restored. As India now stands there is very little money to go round; while the contemplated reforms must involve expenditure in the setting up of the new machinery, and in giving to the whole regime that sound financial foundation in the absence of which it would be exposed to the virtual certainty of collapse. The wisest course is to continue with the necessary task of constructive statesmanship to which Britain has set her hands; but frankly to admit that the actual setting of the new machinery in motion must be conditioned by financial circumstances. Mr. Gandhi insists on remaining a handicap to the Government's efforts, but it is reassuring to note that his latest escapade was attended by no violent agitation. The most significant press message during the week was that from Calcutta stating that the Hindu community were unmoved by Gandhi's arrest, and that life there is proceeding as usual. Gandhi as an obstacle is becoming less and less insurmountable.

The North Point Bathing Sites.

A MASS PETITION pleading for the retention of the bathing sites at North Point is to be presented to the Government, and it is hoped that the expression of public opinion may modify the attitude of the authorities. The perturbation of the Chinese is not difficult to understand as the loss of the privileges at Tsz Tsz Mui would deprive over 10,000 people of one of their chief amenities. The arguments for retention of the sites have been expounded fully and need no reiteration, but it may be said that the case presented by the Bathing Clubs is a good one. Through the facilities at present enjoyed, healthy exercises and peasant recreation are provided for a large section of the community, while opportunity is offered — and availed of — for development of swimming as a sport among the Chinese. The Government are legally entitled to resume the sites, and some justification undoubtedly exists on the ground of industrial development. But the Government have other responsibilities, including the welfare of the community, which in this case is of paramount importance. To quote our associated contemporary, the China Mail, "Any decision by the Government that would involve the deprivation of the bathing sites would need to be based on circumstances more urgent than exist at present."

THE EMPIRE FAIR

(To the Editor "Sunday Herald.")

Sir,—Your most instructive leader last week, "Empire Fair in Hong Kong," raises many problems which deserve a more explicit explanation than can be put into a letter to the Editor.

It seems to me a matter of minor importance when and where the Fair shall be held in Hong Kong, if it is to be on Empire Day or sometime during the cool season, and if a carnival should be added as an attraction or not. But it is not a question of minor importance if the Fair is to be a general one, or exclusively Empire. There can be only one decision, and this is that it shall be for British Empire exhibits only.

The originators who started the Fair about two years ago were British. There is no doubt that if the Fair (in spite of all its technical deficiencies, and shortcomings of organisation) had not been a success, no foreign firm would vote for a general Fair.

It is to be hoped that the present majority of twelve for a purely British Empire Fair against the nine for a general Fair will increase, and that the next year's exhibition will continue to be entirely Empire.

After all, Hong Kong is a British Colony and the economical liberties other nations enjoy in this big free port makes the struggle of British products against foreign goods a hard one.

It is rather a co-incidence that in the same column of your paper, a leader entitled "Back to Economic Nationalism," in which you state, very mildly, that "Each country will continue its own methods of dealing with its own economic crisis," there is given the result of seven weeks of the Economic Conference.

In times like these when trade wars are raging between the nations and where every nation is protecting its own industry with a fortress of tariffs, who can justify the idea of abandoning the Empire's only collective Exhibition in South China in favour of an international mixed Fair? I agree with you in repeating "Certainly the Fair should be continued"; and, must remain British in this British Colony.

Yours, etc.,
C. CRICHTON IMBIE.

WOMEN DEMAND A KING.

Agitation In Basque Provinces.

Basque women, only recently initiated into the art of political campaigning, are giving the men a warm time.

Thousands of "Margaritas," or "Daisies" (as the traditionalists are called) are agitating for a King of the Basque provinces. Much to the annoyance of the authorities they painted the words "Give Basconia Her Liberty" in huge letters across the asphalted surface of the president's route when he visited Bilbao.

A woman speaker at a political meeting in Bilbao after cleverly parrying thrusts from hecklers, urged the tables on an individual who said condescendingly: "How sorry you must be that you are not a man," by retorting "What about yourself?"—Reuter.

FORTUNE WON IN POKER GAME.

Irish Sweep Ticket As Stake.

Four Irish-Americans, natives of County Donegal, have arrived in Ireland to collect £10,000 they won in the Sweepstake on the Grand National.

They won their ticket at a game of poker in Brooklyn. They were unemployed air compressor workers and usually played at an Irish Club in Brooklyn for sweepstake tickets. One of them had previously sold the ticket which they eventually won.

Having collected the prize money, they intend to have a good holiday in Ireland.—Reuter.

The Nation's Magicians.

The garden party of the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington was an astonishing affair, as befits a function given by the nation's staff of magicians.

For our entertainment tame lightning played and struck as commanded. Model ships on a model ocean battled with storms which ranged to scale. Echoes timed themselves with stop-watches and wrore stories of their wanderings in green flame.

Even the stratosphere was provided for. Guests were beguiled with a 1,000 m.p.h. air stream in which the conditions in the region produced. Speed half as fast again explored by Prof. Picard were seen as that of light is but one of the hundreds of diversions which engage the physicists of Teddington.

Mrs. Edgar Dugdale.

A pleasant refuge for harassed conferenceers at luncheon time is the house—quite close to the Geological Museum—of Mrs. Edgar Dugdale.

On several days in the week she is keeping open house for her friends engaged on the Conference. As she was one of the substitute delegates at Geneva last year her friends in official and political circles are many indeed.

Mrs. Dugdale, who is the niece, literary executor, and biographer of the late Lord Balfour, had as her three colleagues at Geneva, Capt. Anthony Eden, Major Walter Elliot, and Sir W. Malkin.

Tom Thumb Holds Court.

Dr. Engelbert Dollfuss, Chancellor of Austria, holds to-day one of the most dangerous posts in the world. There was no sign of this when he recently held his court at Baron Frankenstein's musical reception in the Austrian Legation. The "Thimble Hitler," as the Germans now call him, looked the most care-free man in the assembly.

Cabinet Ministers and ex-Ministers, including Lord Hailsham, Mr. Runciman, Sir Herbert Samuel and Sir Austen Chamberlain; bankers like Sir Robert Kindersley and Mr. Anthony Rothschild; Treasury experts, including Sir Frederick Leith Ross; and Conference delegates and Ambassadors, headed by Baron von Neurath, came to bend before his throne.

The Foreign Office representation included Sir Walford Selby, the Minister-Designate for Vienna, Sir Hubert Montgomery, the new Minister to The Hague, and Mr. Howard Smith, who is to be the new Chief Clerk.

Amid them all smiled Chancellor Dollfuss, his tiny figure resplendent with orders.

Hidden from View.

He smiled as he received his guests at the top of the stairs. He smiled as he sat at the extreme end of the first row during the concert programme—the only male in a line of dowagers.

Downstairs he was nearly mobbed by admirers. Beautiful and linguistically versatile women, interpreting for their husbands, blotted him from the general view. Finding him was literally a game of hunt the thimble. He is the most popular of any of the foreign statesmen who have visited us in recent years.

Sir Austen Chamberlain had the longest talk with Dr. Dollfuss, but the Chancellor had a word for everyone. He scouted the idea that there is any extreme urgency for his return to Vienna.

King Edward and the Ribbon.

Many people at the reception were mystified by the three stars and the green ribbon which the Chancellor wore. No one seemed to know what they represented. They were, in fact, Hungarian, Italian and Papal orders.

The general mystification was typical of the post-war change in diplomatic life. It reminds one of a pre-war incident at the Spanish Embassy, when King Edward, sent for by M. Paul Cambon, the French Ambassador, and drew him into a corner.

"You must be careful," said the King. "Doubtless your valet wish- ed to give you the Grand Cordon of driving arm."

Charles III. to wear to-night. He has made a mistake in the ribbon."

M. Cambon explained very politely that the ribbon had just been changed by an order of the Spanish Court. "Impossible," said the King. "I should have known it."

Next day, when King Edward discovered that M. Cambon was right, he sent for and rebuked the Spanish Ambassador for not informing him in advance of so important a change.

Parliamentary Marksmen.

The rifle shooting match between peers and members of the House of Commons may be abandoned this year. The Commons can find a team, but the Lords are having difficulty in doing so.

The match for the Vizionagram Cup was instituted in 1862. After the war both Houses were well provided with marksmen, and the late Sir Richard Barnett captained the winning Commons team at Bisley for seven years in succession.

The event was regarded with great interest, and ardent marksmen practised hard at the miniature rifle range in a vault below the House of Lords. The range, however, is not now in use.

Special efforts are to be made to recruit a team of peers to keep up the fixture this year.

Mrs. Moody at the Conference.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the Wimbledon ladies' singles champion, has paid a visit to the Economic Conference. She was wearing a black hat with a miniature veil, and a black dress to match with a white bow at the neck.

After listening to the public debate in one of the Committee Rooms for a few minutes she inspected the deserted main Conference hall.

Weather Warnings.

Few people realise how important a part was played during the war by "Meteors"—as the Meteorological Office was called.

Sir Henry was head of "Meteors," and his timely warnings as to impending weather conditions prevented many an attack petering out in the quagmires of a rainy battlefield.

At the Science Museum.

Although Sir Henry Lyons is a "difficult man to succeed," those who know the new director, Brigadier E. B. Mackintosh, have no doubt that he will maintain the high standard set him by his predecessor.

They have many things in common. Brigadier Mackintosh is also a sapper—he is at the moment Chief Engineer, Eastern Command—and, like Sir Henry Lyons, has knocked about a great deal in Egypt and the East.

The most exacting of Brigadier Mackintosh's new duties will be the task of keeping the museum with the largest attendance of any in the world continually abreast of every modern development in science.

Youthful Playwright.

There was an unusual number of fellow dramatists at the premiere of Mr. Lionel Hale's play, "The Mocking Bird," at the St. Martin's Theatre.

Sir Edward Knoblock, Miss Dodo Smith, Major Ian Hay Beith, Mr. Mordaunt Shairp, and G. B. Stern were among them.

Mr. Hale's first play, "She Passed Through Lorraine," was written at the age of 20, while he was still at Oxford and the editor of the "Isis." He is now 23.

Lord Howe.

The injury to Lord Howe's eye caused by the stone that pierced through his visor in the French Grand Prix is not, likely to disable him for as long as was feared.

After the report of the doctor in the American Hospital at Neuilly that the racing engagements for the rest of the season; but later re-voled that decision—at any rate as regards the later events.

Lord Howe has confirmed his entry for the R.A.C. Tourist Trophy race in Ulster at the beginning of King. "Doubtless your valet wish- ed to give you the Grand Cordon of driving arm."

VETERAN MAGISTRATE RETIRES

Recalls Amusing
Episode.

"THE DREADFUL NINETIES"

London.
"Those dreadful days of the Nineties" were recalled by Mr. Douglas Gordon, who has just completed 40 years as a Justice of the Peace for the County of London, in an interview with Reuter.

"We were always complaining of bad times," he said, "just as we are to-day. But they were very good times really and the 'Nineties' were rollicking days."

"Those were the times of what were known as the 'morning drunks'—men who became intoxicated in the morning," he continued. "That reminds me of a funny story. As licensing magistrates, we alterations and so on, and one morning I went round in a hansom and inspected three in Kensington. I got back to the hall in Piccadilly, where the Justices were sitting, turned round to the cab driver, and asked 'How much?'"

"The cabbie looked utterly staggered. He stared down at me and gasped: 'I'm blanked if I know, Sir—I thought you was a morning drunk!'"

"He never dreamed I should be in a condition to pay his proper fare because, as I had paid visits to three public houses, he thought I should be sure to be 'under the influence' long ago!"

"A landlord told me recently that 'perpendicular drinking' is going out of fashion. He meant that people no longer stand at the bars. They prefer to sit down at a table. "This means that we are showing a distinct tendency to emulate the Continental cafe which is a definite improvement on the old public house. There is a great movement that way."

"I always hoped—and I believe we are on the high road to it now—that the so-called public house would be a place to which a married man could take his wife, and an unmarried man his 'best girl' without fear or reproach."

"I remember a very charming old woman—with 200 convictions against her for being drunk and incapable! She was a very nice old soul and very well known in those days, and when she entered the Black Maria, she used to make a curtsy to the warden and say 'Home, James!'"—Reuter.

MOCK MARRIAGES IN INDIA

Ceremony That Stalls
Off Death.

WEDDED TO A TREE

Bombay.

A belief is prevalent among the Hindus that if and when a man marries for the third time, he will meet with immediate death. But it is thought that if he observes the formalities of a mock marriage with a tree, his life will be spared. The trees chosen for these mock marriages are usually a plantain or a sami tree.

The marriage ceremony follows strictly the ordinary marriage procedure. The tree is worshipped. Yellow cotton thread is tied round it, a woman's sari is placed near it and water is sprinkled three times round it. As in an ordinary marriage, a curtain is placed between the bridegroom and the tree-bride. The necklace which every married woman wears is tied to the tree by the bridegroom. After the marriage the bride is cut down from the ground and the severed piece is thrown at the stump and both pieces are then cremated and their obsequies performed.

By this mock marriage, when precedes the real marriage, the bride becomes the fourth partner and so the bridegroom escapes the destiny of immediate death.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S FISHING INDUSTRY

Strict Reforms In New Bill

RESTORING PROSPERITY

Various reforms which are expected to restore prosperity to the British fishing industry, are embodied in a Bill which will be presented to Parliament at an early date.

The proposals are roughly as follows: That all trawlers fishing outside the three mile limit shall use nets of not less than a three inch mesh (width).

That it will be a punishable offence to land fish at a British port under the sizes that will be mentioned in the regulations.

That during the summer, when supplies are most plentiful, there will be a prohibition at all British ports of fish caught in certain fishing grounds, namely: Bear Island, Scorpion Bank, Murmansk Coast and the White Sea.

All foreign countries are to be given a quota consisting of 80 per cent. of their yearly average taken over the last three years.

If these proposals become law, the trawler owners will spend £2,000,000 on building new boats and reconditioning old ones, and this work alone will give immediate employment to 11,500 men.

It is estimated that an increase of 1/2d per pound in the price of fish would bring back prosperity to the British fishing industry, which has suffered so disproportionately in the past few years.—Reuter.

"Life Is Not Holding Good Cards

High Hands Not Envied
In Game Of Life

SKILL PROOF OF ABILITY

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

Jays Of Life.

I do not know where I first saw the words which form the caption for this article, they certainly are not to be found anywhere in the Bible, but they are so extraordinarily true to life and experience that I want to pass them on to you.

There must be very few people these days who do not play some card game or another, or at least, who do not know the difference between a good hand and a bad hand.

To everyone of us, no matter what our station in life may be, the great Master—dealer of human destinies has given a hand to play.

For some it seems that their hand contains all the good cards in the pack. They are born with the proverbial silver spoon in their mouths. They are destined for a life of ease and luxury.

There is the opportunity of the best possible education, and all the advantages of foreign travel. They will be able to indulge in everything the heart can desire.

For others, there seems only the prospect of a life of drudgery and toil, and a hard struggle to make both ends meet. The low cards offer no possibility of "treading the purple path to the sound of flutes."

We are sometimes inclined to envy those who hold all the good cards, but it does not always pay to have all the trumps. A group of people were once discussing French hands, and one of them told of how in the "wild and woolly West," during one of the gold rushes, three men and himself were playing a game of whist. One of the others found himself with the whole 13 trumps in his hand. "What an extraordinary thing," said one of those who were listening to the story, "what on earth did the rest of you hold?" "Oh," was the reply, "we held the Inquest." (Think it over!)

Not Always Envidable. No—the people who hold all the high cards are not always to be envied. They may have a crushing load of responsibility upon their shoulders, which forever keeps their noses to the grindstone, or else they may have a thirst for more, that never gives them the chance of rest and leisure.

After all, even if they do realize the responsibility that their wealth brings to them, they are not doing anything so very extraordinary, they are merely playing a good hand well.

When all is done and said, a Yarrow is rare. Very few hands do not contain at least one card higher than a ten.

Take a look this morning at the hand which has been dealt out to you. No matter what it is, there is something in it for which you can be mighty thankful. You are alive, and while there is life there is hope. The clouds may be obscuring the sun, but its light is there and, at the worst it will rise again to-morrow morning.

You have health and strength, the most priceless gift in all God's great world. Think of all those thousands of men and women, who are in our hospitals dying perhaps by inches of some incurable disease, —better people than you and I will ever be. Yet even there you do not find despair. One of the brightest characters I ever knew was a woman who had been on her back since the age of 15 years, her body drawn up almost around her head with rheumatoid arthritis, yet she was always smiling. There was not much in her hand, but she played it like the heroine that she was.

Provided the cook boy did his stuff properly this morning you had a good breakfast, —and even if the liver is a bit hobnailed, by fifteen times you will at least enjoy that. Some of the world's wealthiest men do not know the meaning of a square meal. One of them has lived for years on milk and dry rucks. Not all the court-cards in the pack can make up for an inside torn by dyspepsia.

We are living in one of the most beautiful spots in Creation. Think of those thousands who are shut away in the slums of our great cities, who know almost nothing of the sun-drenched sea breezes that blow across this island, with its little bays and inlets that offer every chance for enjoyment and health.

We have the use of our minds and faculties. We are not shut away behind grim walls, with the light of our memories forever gone, existing in a world of living death. The wealth of the world's literature is at our disposal. We can pile up day by day the memories which will last us when the shadows begin to lengthen across our path.

We have ready and waiting for us, all the means of grace, the all-compelling all-embracing love of God our Father, the help of His Spirit, and the hope of glory. When you think your hand is a pretty poor one, just remember a few of these things.

The point is how are we playing the hand that is ours? Play it well. There is no getting out of it. From the moment we were born, the game began. Day by day we began to build up that character, which in the end will determine our destiny. Some men took one look at the hand which was theirs, and promptly threw it in, simply because their backbones were wishbones, and they lacked the pluck and punch to make the best of it, entirely forgetting that countless others have had hands as bad, and even worse, and yet made good.

No Love Hands. Even out of a poor hand a good player can make much by skill and knowledge, and by that alone can his ability be judged. Another thing to remember is that you can't play a lone hand in this game of life. There is no such thing as cut-throat. We are all in it. It can help sometimes to think of that.

If you want to learn Contract, you either go to a coach, who knows the game, or else you buy a book on the subject, and get down to learning all you can. The same thing applies, precisely to the game of life.

There is One who knows it inside out, and is just waiting to help us and to show us how to play, and how to win.

"Life is not holding good cards. Its playing a poor hand well."

LADY MISSIONARY'S TRAGIC DEATH.

Fatal Burns From Oil
Explosion.

CHEUNG CHAU ACCIDENT.

Fatally injured by severe burns, the result of an explosion of a tin of kerosene, a German lady missionary, Miss Margaret Schlag, of the Rhenish Mission, passed away at the Matilda Hospital on Friday, shortly after admission.

The accident occurred at Cheung Chau Island at 10.10 a.m. Miss Schlag was using candle-wax to seal a hole in the tin of kerosene from which she had recently drawn a supply, when the flame of the candle ignited the fumes in the tin, causing an explosion.

First aid was rendered by the Police and other Europeans on the island, and she was later removed to Hong Kong by a Police launch.

The funeral was held at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon.

He looked for the body which he had left there on answering his companion's call for help, but to his amazement it had vanished. So, too, had the blood which he remembered distinctly on the ground. He managed to hide his astonishment, and made rapidly for the main street.

This was considerably farther away than he had imagined, but at last he caught sight of the tram-lines, and returned his pistol to his pocket and the knife to his belt.

He remembered for the first time that his companion was hatless and that he was now under an Eastern sun. He clapped his own Hawke's khaki helmet somewhat unceremoniously on her head. She gazed at him in astonishment for a second, and then laughed.

"No, no. I'm all right now, really, thanks to you. I will buy a hat for myself somewhere. Do you know the nearest shop?"

And then she realised that he was bleeding from his right shoulder, where his first enemy had grazed him with the knife which had stood him in such good stead later on.

"Oh, you're hurt! And for me!" Geoffrey had forgotten the wound under the strain of the events which followed, but all at once his shoulder seemed stiff and aching.

"I don't think it's anything, and as a matter of fact it happened before you called. But tell me where you are staying. I must take you home." He wondered how on earth this girl of all others had come to be in Port Said, and concluded she must be staying with her people at one of the hotels for a day or two waiting for some steamer. Her answer soon dispelled all doubts.

"But I don't live anywhere. At least not here. I came on shore from the steamer for a walk." "From the steamer? But the only boat in to-day is the Gangotri." "I know. But then, you see, I'm a passenger on the Gangotri."

"You a passenger on the Gangotri?"

"But so am I. How is it I have not met you?"

"Oh, I'm second-class, and of course you are first."

Geoffrey was silent. He did not altogether like the "of course." It seemed almost as if she were trying to build a barrier between them.

They soon came on a shop which sold various pith and solar hats, and the girl chose one with a celerity which astonished Geoffrey, who had been accustomed to a certain other young lady's dilatory methods of shopping. She paid for it, showing that her purse had not been stolen.

As they went outside Geoffrey said, "Now I'm going to take you on board." He signalled to a carriage which was passing empty and told the driver to take them to the landing-stage.

"Now tell me all about it, won't you?"

"Of course I will, but there is a little to tell. Again I owe everything to you. How can I thank you?" For the first time her voice quavered.

"Oh, come now, you owe a good bit to your own pluck and presence of mind. I only came in at the end, and very glad I am I was there on the spot."

"Well, I landed by myself, as I wanted to do a little shopping. In one shop I saw some lovely ostrich feathers, and went in to look at them. Suddenly I was seized and gagged before I could do anything, and was carried by those two awful men through the back of the shop out into a filthy lane. From there they took me along a perfect network of ghastly slums until they reached the courtyard where you found me. They then bound my wrists, but I managed to spit out the gag and give a call for help. The rest you know. I cannot think what they wanted as they never tried to take my purse." Geoffrey's face hardened as he thought of the numbers of wealthy Turks and Arabs who would pay huge sums and ask no questions if a beautiful English girl were brought to their harems. And he knew that the girl beside him was indeed beautiful. He determined to change the subject.

"Well, I have killed three men this morning. I wonder what I ought to do about it, and whether I should report the matter to the police."

"Three?" But there were only two.

"I know. But I had had a scuffle just before you called. I was attacked by thieves, and had to act in self-defence. In fact, that knife I used was theirs. I could not help it. I fear you must think me an awful bloodthirsty brute."

"Of course I don't. You were splendid."

They had now reached the harbour, and Geoffrey helped his companion into a boat. The boatmen started at the dishevelled condition of the two whites, particularly at Geoffrey's wound. Geoffrey saw their glances, and with a meaningful look at the girl remarked: "Well, I never realised donkey-riding was such a dangerous pastime. Both those brutes let us down badly before we ever reached the sands."

As they ran alongside the steamer's side and were ascending the gangways, he said, "Do you know, we have never told each other our names? Don't you think we had better introduce ourselves. I am Geoffrey BarracloUGH."

"And I am Phyllis Merridew. I am going to join my father, who is a missionary. He is all alone and will be glad to have me. My mother has been dead for a long time—ever, since I was a little girl."

"Well, go and rest. I will explain everything to the captain and ask his advice. In the meantime say nothing. I will call on you, if I may, this evening. We will be passing through the Canal to-night. Au revoir."

"Au revoir, and do look after your shoulder."

TWO-SUIT HANDS

Bidding On Moderate Strength.

By CAPT. LINDSAY MUNDY

TWO-SUIT hands are often perfectly straightforward and easy to bid, but sometimes they afford the greatest and most difficult problems. This only occurs when we get into the region of very strong hands.

When the hand qualifies for a one-bid only, the procedure is straightforward enough. If one is a major suit and one a minor, always bid the major, provided it is a five-card bidable suit, no matter if the minor be considerably the stronger. Thus holding

S—x x x D—x
H—A 10 x x x C—A Q 10 x x
the opening bid should be one Heart. The Club suit can be shown on the next round. If there is one, provided the partner has not supported the Heart bid.

If he has done so, it is futile to show the Club suit. It is true that this hand contains 6 probable tricks, with two aces, and therefore qualifies for a two-bid strictly on the valuation, but the trump suit is too weak to make that bid on the absolute minimum.

A TWO-BID HAND.

Compare that hand with a two-bid hand.

S—A 9 x x x D—A x
H—x x x C—A K x x x

This hand contains 7 1/2 probable tricks, hence a two-bid must be made, and as in the case of a one-bid, the major suit should be selected. This is not on account of the two-club convention shutting out that bid; it would be just the same if the Clubs and Diamonds were interchanged.

This is a hand from the Newcastle match, which I have quoted before. My partner, it may be remembered, held

S—7 x x x D—K x x x
H—x x x C—Q 10 x x

and the game was made in Spades, whereas it would not be made in Clubs, in which suit the hand would be played if it had ever been mentioned.

When both the suits are majors, the higher denomination should be bid first, even if the lower is slightly the stronger, but not if it is considerably so. Let us alter hand (1) to read.

S—A 10 x x x D—K x
H—A Q 10 9 x C—x

In this case the Heart suit should be shown first, and as we have strengthened the hand by the King of Diamonds, it has now become a two-bid.

ONE-BID HAND.

Exactly the same rules apply to a one-bid, so that

S—Q J x x x (2 1/2 as trumps).

H—A x x x x (3 as trumps, 2 as side-suit).

would be a One Spade opening, while with

S—Q J x x x (1 1/2 as side suit)

H—A Q x x x (3 1/2 as trumps)

it would be better to open with One Heart, so that if you later call Spades over an opponent, your partner will know that Hearts is your better suit.

CALLING METHODS.

It is interesting to compare here the difference between calling methods in the case of these two-suit hands consisting of five-card or longer suits, and three-suit hands consisting of four-card suits, when the hands are strong enough for two-bids. In the two-suiters, as we have seen, the higher denomination should normally be called first, while in the three-suiter four-card suit hands, the rule is always to call the lowest available suit first. Hence on the majority of these latter, Two Diamonds will be the opening bid.

In those cases where the Diamond suit is not available, Two Hearts will be the bid, so that it works out that Two Spades will practically always mean at least a five-card suit, while Two Hearts will mean that also far more often than not. Two Diamonds, on the other hand, will usually mean a three-suit hand. When it is a one-suit, that can be shown if necessary by rebidding the suit later, over a non-pre-emptive major suit bid by the partner.

Applying the above rules, how should this hand be bid?

S—A K J x (3) D—K J x (1)

H—A K Q x (3 1/2) C—x x

Although it contains 7 1/2 probable tricks, a bid of Two No-Trumps is ruled out on account of the un-

BURGLARY MADE EASY.

Domestic Servants As Confederates.

Chan Chun, a Chinese printer, was sentenced to six months' hard labour at the Central Magistracy yesterday on a charge of burglary at 35, Lee Tung Street, and stealing a quantity of clothing, a gold wrist-watch and a gold finger-ring.

Two other Chinese, Fung Sheung, a paper-worker, and Leung Yin, a cook, the former charged with aiding and abetting, and the latter with receiving, were sentenced to five months' and four months' hard labour respectively. Det. Sergeant Nollath stated that the last two accused were domestic servants employed at the house. They were in conspiracy with Chan Chun, and by opening the door allowed him to enter and rob the house.

KAI TAK AIRPORT.

Tenders For Fencing Invited.

Tenders for the erection of a concrete post and barbed wire fence at Kai Tak will be received at the Colonial Secretary's Office up to noon on Friday, August 21.

This work comprises the erection of a concrete post and barbed wire fence, about 840 yards in length, along the north and north-east boundaries of the Airport at Kai Tak, New Kowloon.

A MARKED DISPUTE.

Stall-Holder And Customer Bound Over.

Lu Kee, a stall-holder in the Sookumpoo Market, in a quarrel with Mo Chan, a married woman, over the price of his wares, was called a "man devil" other insulting names by the woman. He lost his temper and struck her in the mouth.

At the Central Magistracy yesterday, the stall-holder was ordered to pay $1 compensation to the woman, and both were bound over to be of good behaviour for a period of six months.

guarded suit. That call was actually made and left in a big duplicate match, with the result of being six down. Having no five-card suit, it must be treated as a three-suit, not as a two-suit. Hence the cheapest bidable suit should be bid—that is to say, it is a Two Heart bid.

QUICK PAIN Relief from NAGGING PAIN

'ASPRO'

Is the World's Greatest Antidote against Pain

The PURITY of 'ASPRO'

The purity of "ASPRO" conforms to the standard laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. With
"ASPRO" there is no Free Salicylic
Acid, therefore, it does not harm the Heart, or have any injurious after-effects, such as palpitation, nausea, digestive or other troubles. Safeguard your health and heart by always in-stating on "ASPRO."

'ASPRO' is Woman's Best Friend

Possibly the greatest users of "ASPRO" are women, for whom
"ASPRO" has a special charm on account of the varied periodical experiences with which all women are familiar. They surely know just what a wonderful soothing and pain dispeller
"ASPRO" is. Millions of women throughout the World now regularly take "ASPRO," the safe, sure and effective medicine, to relieve their pain and accompanying physical depression, who before had to resort to dangerous drugs, narcotics or opiates. The understanding woman uses "ASPRO."

'ASPRO' BRINGS SWEET SLEEP TO THE SLEEPLESS

There are many thousands of people who now have sweet, peaceful sleep, who hitherto hardly knew the meaning of a period of restfulness.
"ASPRO" has brought about the transformation by its sweet soothing influence on the nerves, and breaking up of local feverish conditions. Two tablets before retiring is the usual dose.

'ASPRO' IS A SAFE & EFFECTIVE GARGLE FOR SORE THROAT & TONSILLITIS

Two "ASPRO" tablets dissolved in four tablespoonsful of water make a very excellent gargle for sore throat, tonsillitis, and act as a deterrent. The reason why "ASPRO" has such quick action in banishing influenza and cold attacks is, first, because it is an antipyretic or fever destroyer; secondly, when ingested in the system it is a powerful internal antiseptic germicide.

MOTORING NOTES.

Road Mishap Problem

Accidents Which Can Be Prevented.

SAFETY CONGRESS

London.
Much sound sense was voiced at the National Safety Congress, recently. In particular, the General Secretary of the "Safety First" Association placed before the Congress recommendations for tackling the road-accident problem.

Many of the suggestions put forward (says "The Motor Cycle") were those we have urged in our articles on "Preventable Accidents." For instance, he wisely demanded definite regulations as to priority of traffic at road junctions, that there should be a specified standard non-skid surface, and that new arterial roads should be divided into up-and-down carriageways, and mentioned that vehicles should not stand stationary on main roads, particularly at night.

Suggestions such as these are incontrovertible, and the Government should give effect to them immediately. Too long have the powers-that-be dallied with this all-important problem.

We shall never overcome the human element entirely, but there are a hundred-and-one contributory causes of accidents which can be swept away altogether. In the "Safety First" paper there is a basis. The question is: "Will the Government act?"

MOTOR HILL CLIMB THRILLS.

Driver's Narrow Escape
From Death.

Shelsley Walsh.
The largest crowd in the 28 years of the Shelsley Walsh open hill climb sat for six hours under dripping trees hoping to see all the records for the hill broken, at the recent meeting.

Not long after the start J. V. Bolster, driving one of the "special" cars, all wheels and engine, that are built by enthusiasts for this event, stood on its nose at the S bend and rolled over twice before coming to rest miraculously on its wheels.

This mishap made the drivers of the more powerful cars treat the corners with wholesome respect, and the record made by von Stuck, the Austrian champion, in 1930, was never in danger. Raymond Mays, in his Villiers car, was fastest on the first run, beating R. J. G. Nash by 2-5 sec. Nash equalled this time at his second effort, only to be beaten by Mays, who on almost the last climb of the long day did 44 4-5 sec, just 2 sec. worse than the record.

Of the 19 competitors for the ladies' prize Miss Fay Taylor won with some ease, driving Lord Howe's "Mille Miglia" Magnette with great skill.

A GREAT TRIBUTE American Praises British Cars.

HAVE YOU HEARD...?

A man got into a London bus the other day smoking a cigarette.

Conductor: "Can't you read the notices?"

Cigarette Smoker: "Yus, but I never take no notice of 'em."

Conductor: "Well, there's one over there which says 'No Smoking.'"

Cigarette Smoker: "An' there's another over there which says 'Wear Spirella Corsets,' but I ain't going to." — "Motor Transport."

RHUBARB BY ROAD.

A new nightly road service is being operated by a Yorkshire haulier by which rhubarb is conveyed to London throughout the season. Road transport is considered by growers as being particularly suitable for this purpose, owing to the small amount of handling involved, a very important factor in connection with keeping the rhubarb fresh and saleable.

Mr. H. Ledyard Mitchell, chairman of the board of the Chrysler Export Corporation of the United States, who was among the visitors at the last London motor show, paid a great tribute to the British automobile industry.

"It is two years since I attended a London motor show," Mr. Mitchell told an interviewer, "and I must say that in those two years British manufacturers have made remarkable advances. Both the car designs and the values offered are really impressive."

"Three outstanding features of the latest British motor cars which I find most attractive are the general adoption of safety glass, sunshade sliding roofs, and automatic blinds for the rear windows of saloon models fitted to prevent dazzle at night time."

"The sunshine roof is a popular fitting that has impressed me greatly. I am so enamoured with this refinement that I am taking a sunshine saloon back with me to the United States."

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

"STYLE," as applied to the Packard, has always meant something more.

Associated with it, logically and distinctively, is the other important word, "enduring" — a Packard characteristic for a third of a century.

So gradually and correctly has Packard style evolved — like the slow unfolding of a beautiful flower — it has never been at the mercy of that capricious mood which too often alienates to-morrow's style from that of to-day.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

This week Friday the Ford Motor Company completes 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead. Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and comradely honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

DELICATE TASK-HIDING "CRESTWOOD" PLOT END

With so much hinging upon complete secrecy, it was a ticklish undertaking to film "The Phantom of Crestwood" without anyone gathering a hint of the climax of this widely advance publicized photo-play. It would not have mattered ordinarily to have several persons know the complete plot, but with a prize contest for original endings for awards totalling $6,000 under way, the authors of this RKO-Radio Broadcast Special were morally bound to provide against even an accidental leak of the mystery's solution.

Therefore not even the characters in the story—the actors and actresses on the set while "The Phantom of Crestwood" was being filmed—were permitted to know "who killed Jenny Wren."

It was not until after the nationwide contest had closed that the director, J. Walter Ruben, reassembled the necessary players and shot the concluding scenes in which it developed that—but that would be telling—committed the baffling crime.

One thing which facilitated secrecy in the production is that the actual disclosure of the murderer does not come until the last reel of the picture, although for a short space before that moment suspicion begins to focus more definitely upon the real criminal. It is reported that the players, all of whom naturally had formed surmises during the progress of the production, were vastly amazed when the denouement was revealed to them.

On the screen, "The Phantom of Crestwood" is presented as the complete and absorbing mystery drama.

KAREN MORLEY NOTED FOR HER EXOTIC CHARM

It doesn't seem right or possible, but Karen Morley was born in Ottumwa, Iowa.

It doesn't seem possible because, as the wild, sweet, unscrupulous Jenny Wren in RKO-Radio's "The Phantom of Crestwood," she seems to know far too much to have been born as late as December 12, 1910.

Her father is Walter Linton, a broker, but Linton didn't go well with her exotic personality. She went to Hollywood High School and the University of California at Los Angeles, and then betook her perturbing presence to the Pasadena Community Theatre.

The stage claimed her in such ticklish vehicles as "Lasma," a Javanese tragedy, "Fata Morgana" and "And So to Bed."

A screen test won her a part with Greta Garbo in "Inspiration," and her cool, diabolical beauty, and obvious capacity to ensnare poor, defenseless pillars of society, got her a contract.

A sinuous, dangerous blonde, her voice and her mind are deep and inveigling, her conversation terse and to the point. No one will ever put anything over on this fair-haired girl! Why? Can you imagine anyone kidding Cleopatra?

"PHANTOM OF CRESTWOOD" GIVEN A "THIRD DEGREE"

TWENTY SMART PLAIN
CLOTHES COPS TRY THEIR HANDS AT SOLVING ITS PLOTS.

Crime detection experts of the Los Angeles and Hollywood police departments, long trained in the solution of murder mysteries, took a unique test some weeks ago.

They set about to name the assassin for a murder never committed.

This strange assignment was undertaken at request of the Radio Pictures studio in Hollywood to determine whether there existed any structural faults and values in the script for "The Phantom of Crestwood," the $6,000 prize broadcast thriller.

When the test was made the first draft of the story had just been completed and the authors, Bartlett Cormack and J. Walter Ruben, were anxious to get professional opinion on their work.

They submitted their story to the detectives just as it recently was broadcast as a radio drama over the National Broadcasting Company's network; all but the final and resolving sequence being given them to read. Out of the twenty experts who read the chapters of the story up to and just short of the climax just three guessed the identity of the criminal.

All twenty, however, pronounced "The Phantom of Crestwood" a masterpiece for murder mystery fiction.

The picture has one of the finest casts ever assembled in a Hollywood studio. Included among the players are Karen Morley, Ricardo Cortez, H.B. Warner, Pauline Frederick, Mary Duncan, Ivan Simpson, Tom Douglas, Anita Louise, Matty Kemp, George E. Stone, Aileen Pringle, "Skeets" Gallagher, Sam Hardy and others. J. Walter Ruben directed.

ANITA LOUISE

Don't think because Anita Louise, who plays Esther Wren in RKO-Radio's "The Phantom of Crestwood," is as fragile as a dream, that she is too exquisite a bloom for this harsh, gusty world.

For Anita has won a whole row of cups as a fencer; and any coarse, bearded pirate who attempts to carry off this unprotected little maid probably would be so promptly and deftly skewered that his earthly worries would be over.

Anita—born Anita Louise Fremault—began her mortal existence in New York city. Her forebears were from Alsace-Lorraine. She has made two trips to Europe, once to appear in "The Life of Franz Schubert," a play produced in Vienna.

As a child actress in these United States she appeared on the stage with the great Walter Hampden and others, and on the screen with Gloria Swanson.

CAR ON FIRE AT KOWLOON

Machine Badly
Damage.

SOLDIERS' PROMPT ACTION
AT Y.M.C.A.

A small two-seater car caught fire outside the Y.M.C.A. building yesterday afternoon at 2.20 p.m. and was probably saved from complete destruction by two soldiers of the Lincolnshire Regiment.

The car, No. 3261, a Morris Minor, owned by Sanitary Inspector E. A. Chuter, of 313, Prince Edward Road, was seen suddenly to burst into flames from below the driver's seat.

One of the two soldiers, who were passing at the time, ran into the Y.M.C.A. and obtained a fire-extinguisher which he played on the burning car, while the other man pulled the driver's seat-cushion from the car.

A moment later a fire-engine arrived from the Fire Brigade Station nearby, in charge of Inspector Moss. A little water pumped over the car, from the reserve tank on the fire-engine, completely extinguished the flames.

The hood, which was raised at the time, was completely burnt, leaving only the skeleton framework, while the wind-screen and driver's seat also suffered badly. Fortunately the petrol-tank, which is placed over the engine, did not catch fire.

The cause of the fire is unknown.

BRITISH DEBACLE IN WIGHTMAN CUP

AMERICA LEADS 3-0 ON FIRST DAY

HELEN WILLS-MOODY AND ALICE MARBLE UNDER DOCTOR'S ORDERS

New York, Yesterday.

The British women's tennis team collapsed sensationally against America in the first day's play in the Wightman Cup contest at Forest Hills yesterday. They lost all three matches. To-day Britain has the stupendous task of winning all four matches to regain the trophy the Americans have held for the past two years.

Despite the enforced absence of Helen Wills-Moody, the American ladies won both singles matches and the doubles encounter by convincing margins — they did not drop a single set.

Dorothy Round, the only player to take a set off Helen Wills in competitive tennis during the last six years, was completely outplayed by Helen Jacobs, whom she beat in straight sets to meet Helen Wills in this year's Final at Wimbledon, and Margaret Scriven, holder of the French Championship and No. 3 seeded player at Wimbledon, failed sensationally against Sarah Palfrey who replaced Helen Wills. Lack of team-work on the part of Dorothy Round and Mary Heley lost the remaining match.

To-day America is favoured to win at least one of the four matches to retain the trophy, in spite of the fact that Mrs. Moody and Alice Marble are under doctor's orders.

THE RESULTS

The following were the results of yesterday's play:

Helen Jacobs (U.S.A.) beat Dorothy Round 6-4, 6-2.

Sarah Palfrey (U.S.A.) beat Margaret Scriven 6-3, 6-1.

Helen Jacobs and Sarah Palfrey (U.S.A.) beat Mary Heley and Dorothy Round 6-4, 6-2.

The following are to-day's matches:

Sarah Palfrey (U.S.A.) v. Dorothy Round.

Helen Jacobs (U.S.A.) v. Margaret Scriven.

Carolyn Babcock (U.S.A.) v. Betty Nuthall.

Helen Wills-Moody and Alice Marble v. Carolyn Babcock and Mrs. J. Van Ryn (U.S.A.) v. Freda James and Betty Nuthall.

Miss Round Outplayed.

Dorothy Round opened her match against Helen Jacobs with a double fault and lost the game. She won the second by good forehand driving in baseline duels.

The British girl won her service to lead 2-1, but Miss Jacobs lobbed well and concentrated on Miss Round's weak backhand, and as a result of Miss Round's inability to kill many easy lobbs Miss Jacobs went to 4-2 and led 4-3 and 5-3.

The British girl then won a love game to make the score 4-5, but her opponent won her service to take the first set at 6-4.

In the second set Miss Jacobs was seen at her best. With hard and accurate drives, magnificent smashes, and a fine all-round exhibition she swept Miss Round off her feet, the British girl netting and over-hitting frequently. Miss Round won only the second and fourth games. Miss Jacobs finished off the match at 6-2, winning a love game on her service with a spectacular kill from Miss Round's backhand return.

Miss Scriven Beaten.

SARAH PALFREY EXCELS IN SECOND SET.

Margaret Scriven and Sarah Palfrey opened their match with a hard hitting base-line duel. Miss Scriven lost her opening service game, but with fine placements she led 2-1. The umpire was forced to ask the crowd to be quiet.

After long rallies which produced beautiful side-liners by both players Miss Palfrey levelled the scores at 2-all, and proceeded to 3-2.

Miss Scriven then broke through her opponent's service to make it 3-all, but after deuce was called three times she lost the vital seventh game and the American girl took the remaining two games for the set at 6-3.

In the second set Miss Palfrey was seen at the top of her game, proving herself a worthy substitute for Mrs. Helen Wills Moody.

Miss Scriven led 1-0, but after that nothing went right for her. Miss Palfrey with deadly smashes and deft drop shots, and aided by many mistakes by her opponent, took the next six games in succession for the match.

British Pair Outplayed.

In the doubles match Miss Palfrey participated in thrilling net duels with Miss Round, but the Americans clearly out-played the British pair, who lacked combination, whereas their opponents played as a perfect team, killing lobbs and placing "stizzlers" wherever the British players were not.—Reuter.

Helen Wills Unable To Play.

New York, Yesterday.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was unable to play in yesterday's Wightman Cup singles owing to an injury to her back.

The trouble was diagnosed as a sprain brought on by the recurrence of an old injury which had been aggravated by strenuous practice.

Mrs. Moody is acting as non-playing captain and hopes after another examination to play in to-day's singles and doubles matches, or if not in both, then in the final match in the doubles.

Sarah Palfrey, included principally for her doubles play, replaced the famous Helen.—Reuter.

Alice Marble Faints.

Alice Marble, another member of the American Wightman Cup team, fainted last night, and her participation in to-day's singles and doubles matches is regarded as doubtful. She is under doctor's orders.—Reuter.

WINNERS TO-DATE

The winners of the Wightman Cup to date have been:
1923. America won at Forest Hills 7-0.
1924. Britain won at Wimbledon 6-1.
1925. Britain won at Forest Hills 4-3.
1926. America won at Wimbledon 4-3.
1927. America won at Forest Hills 6-2.
1928. Britain won at Wimbledon 4-5.
1929. America won at Forest Hills 4-5.
1930. Britain won at Wimbledon 4-3.
1931. America won at Forest Hills 6-2.
1932. America won at Wimbledon 4-3.

HONG KONG AS AN AIRPORT

Kai Tak Praised By Dutch Official.

NO EXTENSION YET OF K.L.M. SERVICE.

"I think Kai Tak is a highly efficient and very well laid out Aerodrome," said Mr. M. C. Moes, visiting Inspector of the Royal Dutch Air Lines, in an interview with a representative of the "Sunday Herald" yesterday evening.

He said that for the present the K.L.M. (Royal Dutch Air Line) do not propose to extend their service either from Singapore or Java to Hong Kong, but have an interest in future communications between the ports.

"From what I have seen of the present aerodrome and from what I have been told by Mr. A. J. R. Moss, Civil Superintendent at Kai Tak, of the new Civil Aerodrome, Hong Kong will in the future become a very important junction in international communications," said Mr. Moes.

A change from July 1 in the route of the K.L.M., of much importance to Hong Kong, was the deviation of their service from Batavia-Medan-Alor Star and Bangkok, to Batavia-Singapore-Alor Star-Bangkok and Europe, thereby quickening up the communications by co-operating with the Air Mail leaving Hong Kong every alternate Saturday, arriving in Singapore on the following Wednesday and catching the K.L.M. Mail plane on the Thursday.

As a result of this change of route the Postal authorities in Hong Kong have opened an Air Mail Service connecting at Singapore every Thursday. Mr. Moes was unable to say whether his Service had been represented at the recent conversations in London between the Imperial Airways and the Air Ministry with regard to the new Civil Aerodrome at Kai Tak.

Considerable straddling operation in silver, between August and December, took place on the New York Market, yesterday. The trade sold and trading was light.

There was an obvious lack of incentive on the general market, and no important selling took place, business reaching only 500,000 shares. Industrials dropped 1.48 to 92.62, while rails, utilities and bonds also experienced slight declines.—Reuter.
